

Coronavirus COVID-19

We would like to advise all of our customers and suppliers that our priority is to protect the health of our staff, customers and suppliers during the Covid-19 outbreak.

We are taking all necessary measures to ensure that the business is able to function as normal to serve our customers through the coming months. This applies to all of our business and products, namely Simplefit, Eurocowl, Centaur and BiMetal Tools.

We are currently following government advice and relaying this advice to all employees.

The company does not have any external labour services being provided and therefore will have no impact on our business.

We are fully aware that the depth of situation is unknown at present, we are reviewing current and new order contracts and also in discussion with current order providers or suppliers of services to understand possible supply chain risks that may impact on any of our products or deliveries to our final Customers with regards to potential delay.

We will be in contact with any Customers at the first opportunity, if any risk of providing products to the original order date may be in question or be at risk of change.

We have instructed all staff on self-isolation processes as advised via the government and have flowed across best practices to minimise risk of infection internally during working hours.

The Simplefit workforce includes personnel being able to step in and support additional functions within all parts of our internal processes. This will ensure staffing levels over this difficult period, will meet with our business demands.

All products and service deliveries being received are accepted to minimise risk of infection with limited personnel dealing with deliveries and reducing contact within the premises.

Please note any changes or actions in government advice will be followed and implemented as required.

Jason Macdonald
Managing Director

17th March 2020